

Envoy Leaves Egypt Post For 'Personal Reasons'

S. Pinkney Tuck

The New York Times

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, May 21—S. Pinkney Tuck, a career diplomat of thirty-five years' experience, resigned today as Ambassador to Egypt for "compelling reasons of a personal nature." President Truman accepted the resignation, effective at the end of this month, "with deep regret."

Mr. Tuck was appointed Minister to Egypt in 1944 and was promoted to Ambassador there in 1946. He entered the foreign service in 1913 after having been graduated from Dartmouth.

During his long career he served as consular officer and diplomatic secretary in Europe, the Middle and Far East, and South America, being stationed variously in Constantinople, Paris, Alexandria, Cairo, Vladivostok, Budapest, Prague and Buenos Aires.

During the Nineteen Twenties and early Nineteen Thirties he was a member of the United States delegations at disarmament and other special conferences. After the defeat of France in World War II he was counselor of the United States Embassy in Vichy from October, 1941, to November, 1942.