Pilgrimage Shelter Battered
New York Times (1857-Current file); May 24, 1948; ProQuest Historical Newspapers The New York Times (1851 - 2002)
pg. 3

Pilgrimage Shelter Battered

CAIRO, Egypt, May 23 (Æ)— The battle for Jerusalem mounted in intensity with the passing hours. Trans-Jordan's Legion opened up with the heaviest barrage of the six-day battle against Israeli machine-gun posts in Notre Dame Hospice. One corner of that French pilgrimage shelter on Suleiman Road, just north of the Old Walled City, was battered for over an hour by the Legion's guns, a Jerusalem dispatch said. Then Arab volunteers charged into the ground floor. They were reported to have fought from room-to-room with the Israeli troops in the building.

Fighting still raged in the Old City, where a beleaguered Israeli garrison was defending 1,500 inside the walls.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.