TUCK PUT ON SUEZ BOARD

Ex-Envoy to Egypt Is the First American to Be Named

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 8—S. Pinkney Tuck, former United States Ambassador to Egypt, was elected a member of the board of the Suez Canal Company at its regular meeting here today. He will be the first American to serve in this capacity.

A statement by the company said that the appointment had been made because the company considered "that the important part of the United States flag in traffic through the Canal justified the presence on the board of an administrator of American nationality."

Mr. Tuck resigned as Ambassador to Egypt recently, at a time when the United States Government shifted its policy on the Palestine question.
