Prelude to Arab Regime

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

New York Times (1857-Current file); Jul 30, 1948; ProQuest Historical Newspapers The New York Times (1851 - 2
pg. 9

Prelude to Arab Regime

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 26 (Delayed)—Egypt's Premier, Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha, declared today that the Administrative Council for Palestine that was set up by the Arab League two weeks ago was "quite definitely to be regarded as a prelude to an Arab Government for Palestine."

The talk about dividing sections of Palestine among the surrounding Arab states, he said, was a case of "people selling what they don't own."

The Administrative Council to which he referred consists of ten members under the chairmanship of Ahmed Hilmi Pasha, Arab Military Governor of Jerusalem and member of the Arab Higher Committee.

Insisting that there were no conceivable circumstances under which the Arab states would recognize a Zionist state, the Premier said:

"The action of the United Nations Security Council, the United States and other states is designed to force an intruder upon us while actually implying that we are aggressors, that the Arabs are breaking the peace."

Nokrashy Pasha characterized Israel as "a foreign wedge, the bearer of ideologies foreign to us." Britain, he said, must bear the responsibility for allowing the Zionists to amass the manpower and arms during the mandate with which they attacked the Arabs and committed atrocities.

Regarding the conditions that the Arab League Political Committee had attached to the Arab acceptance of the truce, he said:

"Why should they not be accepted? Bernadotte [Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations Mediator] himself admitted that the earlier truce worked to the advantage of the Jews. It would be unreasonable to expect us to accept a new truce of unlimited duration and without guarantee."

He asserted that United States State Department representatives with whom the Arab leaders dealt in the Middle East had, since Nov. 29 last year, privately deplored the United States Government's Palestine policy.

"I have been hearing that for a long time," he said, "but there is a limit. You cannot forever have diplomats holding views at variance with the views of their Governments."

The suggestion, frequently heard in Middle Eastern political circles, that the United States might redress its position in the Arab world by initiating a "little Marshall Plan" for the Arab countries was regarded by Nokrashy Pasha "a bit out of place under the circumstances."

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.