Egyptian Envoy Warns On Suez 'Token Forces'

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — Egypt will regard the dispatch of "token forces" to the Suez Canal area by any other power as "an unfriendly act and an aggression on its sovereignty," Mohamed Kamil Bey Abdul Rahmin, the Egyptian Ambassador, said today after a call on Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The Ambassador told reporters on leaving the Secretary's office that Prime Minister Churchill had made a "very unfortunate proposal" in suggesting to Congress last week that token forces from the United States, France and Turkey "would be welcome," since the canal is an international rather than a national responsibility.

The Ambassador described Mr. Churchill's suggestion as "tantamount to adding fuel to fire."

"We consider that any participation in token forces by any power as an unfriendly act and an aggression on our sovereignty," the Ambassador added.
