BRITONS LOST AT SUEZ TURNING UP IN PARIS

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—The War Office disclosed today that a number of British servicemen who disappeared in Egypt last year have been turning up mysteriously in Paris.

"Just how they get there is a complete mystery at the moment," a spokesman said. "They seem to be quite well provided for. They have money and papers of a sort."

The London tabloid Daily Sketch hinted in a Paris dispatch that the men had been brought in through an underground channel from the Suez Canal Zone.

"They have money. They have forged passports. And some have reported to the Egyptian consulate," The Sketch said.
