Nasser Welcomes New Talks
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
New York Times (1857-Current file); Mar 6, 1954; ProQuest Historical Newspapers The New York Times (1851 - 2002) pg. 2

Nasser Welcomes New Talks

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Saturday, March 6—Lieut. Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, Premier of Egypt, said today that Egypt would welcome new talks with Britain on the Suez Canal zone issue.

He was questioned on the subject immediately after the announcement that Egypt had scheduled an election for a constituent assembly to begin taking over the military rule of the country.

"We will surely welcome negotiations," he said, "but any agreement would have to be ratified by either the constituent assembly or the permanent Parliament, if it were established."

In British offical circles some doubts have been expressed privately over the validity and durability of any agreement entered into by the Revolution Command Council.

The establishment of an elected body to ratify an accord on the canal zone is likely to reassure the British that any agreement would be a binding one. On the other hand, relations with Britain long have been the favorite theme of demagoguery in the Egyptian Parliaments of the past and any agreement is likely to face hard sledding in any popularly elected assembly.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.