LONDON, July 19—Foreign Office spokesmen said today there had been no official confirmation in British channels of reports from Spain about small arms being manufactured there for export to Egypt.

However, one source said, Britain has made representations to Spain in the past about the export of arms to Egypt. He said British soldiers stationed in the Suez Canal base still were being attacked by Egyptian terrorists.

There was speculation here that the news of Egypt's arms purchases in Spain might be tied in with the current Anglo-Egyptian negotiations in Cairo for British evacuation from the Canal zone.

Britain is known to have met strong Egyptian opposition to certain of her latest proposals. There is a suspicion in well informed circles that arms buying in Spain is diplomatic pressure on Britain for a quick compromise.
