TRIBUTE PAID DR. AZMI

Diplomats Honor U.N. Delegate Who Died Wednesday

Special to The New York Times.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 4—Diplomats from sixty countries stood in silent meditation today in tribute to Dr. Mahmoud Azmi, Egypt's chief delegate, who died here suddenly yesterday.

Dr. Azmi, who was 65 years old, collapsed while delivering Egypt's side of a dispute with Israel in the Security Council. His death was caused by a heart attack.

In the series of more than thirty eulogies to his memory made by fellow-delegates, many also directed words of sympathy to the royal house of Iran. Prince Ali Riza, 32-year-old heir presumptive to the Iranian throne, was found dead yesterday near the wreckage of a plane crash.

The tributes were made at the outset of this afternoon's meeting of the General Assembly, led off by Dr. Eelco N. van Kleffens, President of this ninth Assembly session. At his request, both diplomats and visitors in the public gallery arose and stood with bowed heads during the minute of silence.
