ISRAEL JAILS BOY SPIES

Four Convicted of Gathering Army Data for Egypt

Special to The New York Times.

TEL AVIV, Israel, Dec. 8—Four Arab high school pupils have been jailed for five years by an Israeli military court for espionage on behalf of Egypt. The judgment, given in Rehovot Monday, was made public tonight by an army spokesman here.

According to a summary of the evidence released by the army, the spies ranged in age from 16 to 18 and had been recruited by a teacher in Gaza. They were said to have received a seven-day course during which they were taught to identify weapons.

An Egyptian intelligence officer who was said to have ordered them to gather information on troop movements, security measures in Israeli villages, the location of military camps and details of army weapons.
