He Asserts Israel Is Indignant Over Egyptian Trial of Jews

Special to The New York Times.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 13—Premier Moshe Sharett tonight voiced in the Knesset (Parliament) the "indignation" of Israel over the trial of eleven Jews in Egypt.

He declared the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee of the Knesset "has dealt and will continue to deal with this grave subject." The committee resumed its session after his speech.

Mr. Sharett repeated the press report that one of the defendants, Victorine Nino, had stated in court that she had been tortured into admitting crimes she had not committed.

"The Government of Israel raises its voice in strongest protest against this attempt to perpetuate in the Middle East of today the methods of medieval inquisition," he said, adding that the Government rejected the "fantastic libels" that Israeli authorities had committed outrages and devised plots against the security and international relations of Egypt.
