Egypt Charges Obstruction
Special to The New York Times.
New York Times (1857-Current file); Mar 7, 1955; ProQuest Historical Newspapers The New York Times (1851 - 2002)
pg. 8

Egypt Charges Obstruction

Special to The New York Times.

CAIRO, March 6—The armistice commission met in no man's land north of the town of Gaza. The meeting convened at 10 A. M., but according to a commission spokesman, long and frequently stormy arguments on procedure occupied the body for three and a half hours and the decision was handed down after eight hours.

An Egyptian spokesman charged that Israel's appeal was an attempt to delay a final ruling here and thus prevent the Security Council from acting on Egypt's complaint.

In the past the Security Council has declined to act on complaints until there is a final ruling by the Mixed Armistice Commission. The appeal enables Israel to argue in New York that the local machinery set up to administer the truce has not completed action.

This argument might be effective for some time if, as in the past, one side or the other succeeded in preventing the special committee from meeting by absenting its delegates. Since Feb. 7, Israel has been boycotting the committee as a protest against Egypt's hanging Jan. 31 of two Jews convicted of spying and sabotage in behalf of Israel.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.